6. OKTOBER

Der Oktoberkrieg, auch bekannt als Jom-Kippur-Krieg, war ein bewaffneter Konflikt zwischen Ägypten und Israel im Jahr 1973. Die Kriegshandlungen begannen am 6. Oktober und endeten am 25. Oktober desselben Jahres.

Der Krieg begann, als ägyptische und syrische Streitkräfte überraschend Israel angriffen. Ägypten wollte die Kontrolle über das Sinai-Gebiet zurückgewinnen, das es während des Sechstagekrieges im Jahr 1967 an Israel verloren hatte. Syrien strebte die Rückeroberung der Golanhöhen an, die ebenfalls von Israel besetzt waren.

Die ägyptischen und syrischen Truppen konnten zu Beginn des Krieges einige Geländegewinne erzielen. Dies führte zu einer schnellen Mobilisierung der israelischen Verteidigungskräfte. Unterstützt von den Vereinigten Staaten gelang es Israel schließlich, die Offensive der arabischen Staaten zurückzuschlagen.
